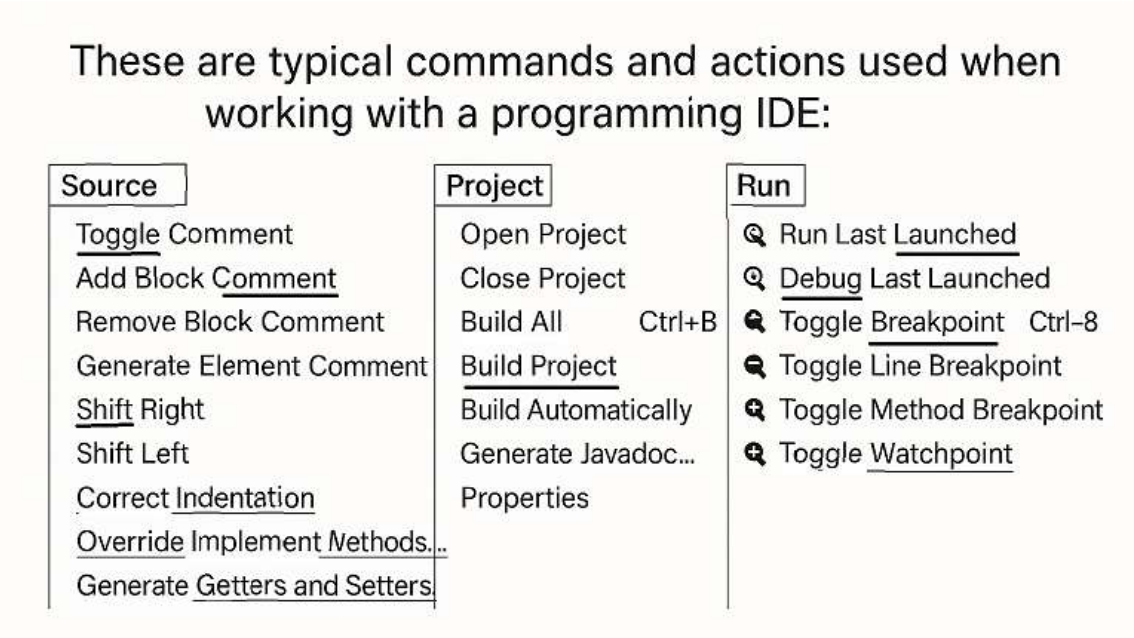
VOCABULARY UNIT 5 - GS

MATCH WORDS WITH THE CORRECT DEFINITION



a. The action of creating an updated version of the project from the source code.

b. The action of moving text or code to the right or left for visual organization.

c. Special method designed to access or modify the value of an object's attributes.

d. A temporary stop added in the program execution to check variables and behaviour.

e. Symbol or point used to follow the value of a variable during program execution.

f. The action of generating machine-readable code from the source code.

g. Additional blank space added automatically at the beginning of lines of code.

h. A method in the code whose functionality is defined and separated clearly.

i. Action of changing the internal code of a method to give it a different behaviour.

j. A program or process that has already been executed before running again.

k. The action of enabling or disabling a feature, command, or effect.

l. To run the program step by step in order to detect and correct errors.